PUB HISTORY

You'd never guess the inspiration for this whimsical, castle-like edifice set in a suburban industrial park – it was a crumbling yet beautiful water treatment plant that Mike McMenamin saw on a trip to Hawaii in the 1990s. He gave the architects a couple photographs and here we are today! The pub's name, however, is taken from the British folksong written centuries ago, in which John Barleycorn is a personification of the cereal crop barley and of the alcoholic beverages made from it – beer and whisky. Many artists in all different genres have covered the song since its inception – Traffic, Fire + Ice, Paul Weller, Jethro Tull, Billy Bragg, Frank Black, to name just a few.
