OUR HISTORY

This location's history stretches back long before the twin-pyramid pub itself. William Baxter arrived in 1851 from Indiana, and was the first non-Native to settle this place. Having hailed from a tight-knit abolitionist community, Baxter joined with likeminded pioneers here in the earliest attempt to allow free slaves to settle in the Oregon Territory, attending the first so-called Free Soil Convention. Over the decades, the Baxter homestead changed hands many times and was subdivided. Skip ahead to 1965, when the Raleigh Hills Market & Delicatessen opened here on a portion of the original Baxter land, in a new, unique commercial structure. The thriving business captured the attention and imagination of Mike McMenam in 1977; he ran the market for a time, but sold it to focus on the brewpub business. When it went up for sale again, however, Mike didn't hesitate to buy it back. Renamed the Raleigh Hills Pub, the twin-pyramid building became the ninth McMenamins brewpub. Here's to second chances!
