PUB HISTORY

Before McMenamins took stewardship of this fabled spot, The Spar had long been known among travelers of the old Pacific Highway as a roadside destination for a meal, game of pool or hand of cards, finished with a great smoke. From the 1940s to our reopening in 2007, the place was run by one family, the McWains, catering to the travelers along with the lawyers, politicians, and lobbyists who regularly gathered here for business in the state capital. But perhaps The Spar's true life force is its artesian well in the basement, bubbling with clean, clear water that's over 3,000 years old. It makes a damn fine drink – both in its purest form and when brewed into a pint of McMenamins beer.
